

#1 Post-Pandemic EuroNet Newsletter (#20)

One year of COVID-19: where has EuroNet MRPH been?

by the EuroNET MRPH Board

Dear Euronetters,

It's a huge honor for us to present this EuroNet MRPH Newsletter. Last year was undoubtedly a challenging one. Since the declaration of SARS-CoV-2 as a public health emergency of international concern, public health has been in the public eye, and, from surveillance to vaccination, medical residents in public health have played a key role in the response against Covid-19.

Sadly, this situation has affected our network, denying us our beloved meetings. Nevertheless, we must look on the bright side. Due to digital media, we are more connected than ever. We were able to see each other at the last online Winter Meeting, where we got to know more regarding OCDE, ECDC, and EPIET internship programs. Besides that, monthly teleconferences have gained more attention, and in the last months, we could enjoy several talks covering topics as equity or qualitative research.

Last, but not least, doubts, experiences – and our favorite public health memes - can always be shared through our WhatsApp groups. Moreover, due to the current vaccination campaigns across Europe, we look ahead to the future with optimism, hoping presential meetings to be around the corner.

Being part of the board is a privilege, and we truly appreciate all the trust placed in us. We cannot forget to mention all the people that have been collaborating with us in the last months: from presidents of national associations who were pleased to meet us to help us know how to improve our net, to our alumni, who are always there to give us a hand, acting as an endless fountain of wisdom.

Finally, we would like to recognize the hard work and dedication of our working groups. When it comes to research, there is an ongoing study targeting the Mental Health of public health residents during the Covid-19 pandemic,

PORTUGAL - The Portuguese NC has been off during most of the pandemic because of the excessive workload in our public health units, and only now are we starting to regroup and plan new activities with the residents. Our NC comprises one public health resident from each 5 regional health administrations (ARS). ARS are public entities that cover and divide in 5 (North, Centre, Lisbon and Tagus Valley, Alentejo and Algarve) the whole continental part of the country. We don't currently have public health resident representation in our autonomous regions, which are our islands, Madeira and Azores, even though we have public health units there.

Working groups presentation : Italy

Looking for ideas? Interested in knowing what the other National Committees are working on? Take a look down here, in this edition of the newsletter we are sharing the working groups of... Italy!

Gender equality in public health

- Ethics in scientific publishing and dissemination
- Reproductive Health and HIV prevention
- Primary Health Care
- Health inequality and migrant health
- Emergency in public health
- Healthcare-associated infections, antimicrobial resistance, emerging infectious disease, and hospital hygiene
- Mental public health
- Physical activity and health promotion
- Communication, scientific dissemination, and health education
- Prevention and innovation: hygiene departments, vaccinations, organizational models and economic evaluations
- The role of the competent doctor
- Education in Public Health

The call was open in February and they have just begun to work. Most of them are lead by 1 or 2 coordinators, involve about 20-40 participants, and will work for around 1 or 2 years.

I am overwhelmed and I believe you are too

by Francesca Grosso, Communication Lead

Hello everybody, nice to meet you! My name is Francesca, I am the Communication Lead for this year and I am a public health resident at the University of Milan (Italy).

I am writing this while I am attending a course on my computer and I feel guilty. I am never able to fulfill all of the “to do’s” of the day, constantly making priority lists in my head and systematically rescheduling things. The amount of items that are always pushed to “tomorrow” grows day by day... will they someday find a place in real life and get done, somehow? I don’t know.

I love my job most days but I never believed in Confucio’s famous words “Find a job that you love and you will never work one day of your life”. I’m PRETTY MUCH working every day of my life, how is that?

I know most of the public health residents are in my same shoes right now: associative life in Euronet was reduced considerably, participation of some countries was around zero, and this year it had been impossible to decide for a day to schedule March Meeting on.

On the other hand interest in mental health seems to be growing: the survey on how the pandemic affected the European PH residents' mental health has been a huge success and we collected more than 400 surveys!

If I hadn’t had the help of Giorgia in the communication team, I believe there would have hardly been the first newsletter this year and I hope it’s not the last one. Thank you so much Giorgia and thank you to everyone I worked with, thank you for the patience, the constant understanding, and for pushing deadlines like there’s no tomorrow. I appreciate you.

I want to believe that next Spring Meeting we will be meeting life somewhere colorful and lively, where we could get to know each other, share our stories and RELAX.

Until then, hang in there and take care of yourselves.

Francesca
